Leslie Hamm Appointed to Intuit Accountant and Advisor Customer Council

RALEIGH, NC – Leslie Hamm has been named to the 17-member Accountant and Advisor Customer Council for Intuit Inc., a leading provider of business and financial management solutions for small businesses, consumers and accounting professionals. Council members will share their insights, experience and expertise with Intuit as the company develops new products and services for accountants and advisors, as well as their clients nationwide.

“As the owner of Alpha Accounting, with the largest team of QuickBooks Certified Professional Advisors in the Triangle, I am very excited to have this opportunity to share my perspective on QuickBooks products and services. QuickBooks has been our focus for over 10 years and now I can be a productive part of the plans for the future as well.” - Leslie Hamm

“Intuit is fortunate to have Leslie Hamm on board as an active member of our customer advisory council,” said Donna Ohman, Senior Manager of Intuit’s Accountant Relations Group. “Our focus is on developing the very best products and services for accountants, advisors, and their clients. With such leading practitioners such as Leslie Hamm providing imaginative and practical counsel, we believe that Intuit now has a real advantage in developing and delivering next-generation solutions.” The Accountant and Advisor Customer Council meets periodically at Intuit’s headquarters in Mountain View, California, part of fabled Silicon Valley, as well other Intuit locations throughout the U.S. Members review potential developments and provide input on such critical accountant and small business tools as new software products and web-based services. Intuit began the Customer Advisory Councils in 1993 as part of the company’s initiative to develop end-to-end technology solutions that address the financial and accounting needs of accountants, business advisors and their clients. All members of the Intuit Accountant and Advisor Customer Council serve a one- to two-year term. Participation on the Council is driven by participants’ desires to contribute to the development of better technology products and services for both them and their clients.
